Northern Long Term Care Conference

LaingBuisson's regional long term care conference brings together leading speakers and delegates from across the residential, domiciliary and extra care sectors to discuss the challenges and changing landscape faced by providers of care for older people away from the more affluent South East. In this way the event delivers highly focused conversation and debate which directly addresses the ways in which this volatile slice of healthcare is intrinsically linked to local economy and regional council practice.

Britain remains the only western economy without a strong regional policy, and despite the 'one nation' mantra of successive governments, the wealth gap between North and South is widening with much debate seemingly unable to look further afield than the capital and the South East.

Budget cuts and the National Living Wage are impacting social care services throughout the country and with the axing of targeted funding, higher unemployment and lower house prices, councils outside of these narrow areas have been hard pushed to raise sufficient funds to keep services going. The ensuing freeze on fees is squeezing social care providers to the limit.

Set against a backdrop of further austerity, LaingBuisson's one-day regional conference will discuss the future of funding care for older people and how innovation in the sector is driving improvements for staff, commissioners and service users.

Session topics include:

- Care cost benchmarking: what does this mean for the future?
- What is good quality? What are the characteristics of individual services which achieve outstanding quality?
- How Manchester has embraced devolution
- How can social care 'remain' relevant amid a packed EU exit agenda?
- Will Brexit rob the UK of its caring workforce?
- The future of traditional residential care in the face of homecare and extra care
- Innovative telehealth and digitally enabled care
- When will extra care break through the wall?
- Mental health provision – throw away the lock and key
- Innovation: panel consisting of speakers, conference chair and prominent independent sector providers from the long term care market describe in their view what innovative steps can be taken to deliver quality in challenging times.

7 Reasons for attending
